Public servants are privy to sensitive information that needs to be treated in a respectful, trusted and transparent way, to ensure a cycle of trust in the public sector and the people it serves.

Kāpuhipuhi Wellington Uni-Professional have partnered with the Government Chief Privacy Officer, Department of Internal Affairs to develop this 6-week micro-credential. This course will introduce you to privacy in Aotearoa within the context of the public sector and will equip you with tools to apply in your public service role.

This course will be taught through a combination of live online teaching and self-paced online learning, with one module and online reading and one-hour live online tutorial weekly.

Weekly live-online tutorials will take place 2-3pm Thursday 12, 19 & 26 October, 9 & 16 November and 2-5pm Thursday 23 November.

This micro-credential course is delivered as five modules over six weeks:

- ✓ Why is privacy important?
- ✓ What do I need to know about privacy in Aotearoa New Zealand?
- ✓ How do I apply privacy in my agency?
- ✓ How can I help build a privacy culture in my agency?
- ✓ How can I help build a people-centred privacy culture in my agency?
